

The Adventures of Tintin

Rackham's Treasure.

Although the plot has changed completely, the nature of the characters and the feel of the adventure in the comics have been portrayed very well. Tintin is still the adventure loving and sharp boy whereas Archibald Haddock is still the clumsy man who tends to go wild due to his addiction to spirits.

The audio and video effects are breathtaking. The picture is sharp and the characters look almost life-like. The 3D effect brings the characters alive as they struggle around you and the image of an advancing vehicle will make you want to take off the glasses as you may feel lily-livered. The sound is perfect and the voiceover artists are the likes of Jamie Bell, Andy Serkis and Daniel Craig who compliment the seriousness of a scene with their lovely voice modulations. I felt my heart leap at the sound of gunfire and the screaming of pedestrians. This movie will certainly appease Tintin fans from all generations and will give adrenaline rush a whole new meaning. The main clue is, "Three brothers joined. Three unicorns in company sailing in the noon-day sun will speak. For 'tis from the light that light will dawn and hen shines forth the eagle's cross". Where does this lead? Go grab your popcorn and re-discover Red Rackham's treasure.
